Dorothy Stevens Presents Charming Picture of Ontario Artists Display

ORTHODOXY REIGNS

By FREDDIE GRAY

A woman, Miss Dorothy Stevens, has two of the most interesting paintings on display at the 10th annual exhibition of the Ontario Society of Artists, which is now at the Art Gallery, Bethune.

One is titled "The Colours, a study of young people," and the other, "Strangers in the City," is a portrait of two women.

The former picture, made by Miss Stevens, is a study of two women, one of whom is a young lady with a young man, both dressed in old-fashioned clothes. The picture is done in a loose, impressionistic style, and the colors are soft and muted, with a hint of blue in the background.

The latter picture, "Strangers in the City," is a portrait of a young woman and a young man, both dressed in old-fashioned clothes. The picture is done in a more formal, realistic style, and the colors are more vibrant, with a hint of yellow in the background.

The two pictures are quite different in style, and they show the artist's versatility and range. The first picture is more impressionistic, with soft colors and a dreamy quality, while the second picture is more realistic, with sharper colors and a more solid, defined quality.

The exhibition is open to the public, and the pictures can be seen at the Art Gallery, Bethune, until the end of the month.
